About the Training...
Recognizing the impact of school attendance on school climate, academic achievement and student success, the Local Control & Accountability Plan requires local educational agencies (LEAs) to develop goals and actions to address attendance rates and chronic absenteeism rates for all students as well as historically underserved student subgroups. California’s new multiple measures accountability and continuous improvement system, which includes chronic absenteeism rates, reflects a clear expectation that LEAs and schools make progress towards meeting the needs of their students, increases the focus on equity, and promotes transparency by sharing the results of that progress with all stakeholders through the dashboard.

This workshop will address how LEAs can analyze multiple measures of attendance and implement age-appropriate strategies within a multi-tiered system of support to meet the needs of students with persistent school attendance problems. Participants will be guided through the initial development of an attendance improvement plan.
